Welcome Letter from SASGOG President, Lee A. Learman, MD, PhD

Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of our Board of Directors I warmly welcome you to SASGOG's 5th Annual Meeting! Our Program Chair, Maureen Farrell, MD, and the program planning committee have put together an outstanding agenda, packed with a wide range of valuable sessions and activities, along with time to network, meet old friends and make new ones at lunch and our afternoon reception.

Our morning sessions are organized around the theme, "Of Course You Can Do THAT: Promoting Comprehensive Women's Health." By lunch time we will emerge with an improved understanding of evidence-based approaches for teaching millennials, tips by experts on how to teach the "hard stuff" and a status report on national efforts to sustain women's access to comprehensive healthcare. Dr. Barbara Levy, ACOG VP for Health Policy, will be giving the keynote address. Dr. Levy works in the trenches with other ACOG leaders to move the policy needle in the right direction. She is a passionate advocate of comprehensive women's health and of SASGOG.

A networking lunch will be followed by afternoon sessions focused on the future of academic OBGYN specialists: clinical niche development, tracking within OBGYN, and the different phenotypes of mentoring through the ages. Our last plenary session is a collaboration with CUCOG, a "tradition" we started last year when Cecile Richards was the speaker. This year we will gather together to hear Valerie Castle Opiari, MD, President of the Association of Medical School Pediatric Chairs, discuss opportunities for shared advocacy between OBGYN's and pediatricians.

SASGOG is fortunate to have an energetic group of leaders organizing a variety of career development activities for our meeting. Drs. Becky McAlister, Sarah Appleton and their teams have been busy organizing SASGOG's pipeline programs. We are very pleased to offer support for resident travel to the SASGOG meeting through our Resident Reporter Program, funded by an unrestricted grant by Hologic, and to feature additional programming for residents planning or exploring careers as academic specialists. Drs. Nancy Gaba and Todd Jenkins have been busy building upon last year's breakout session to offer an expanded program for current and aspiring division directors. I am also grateful to the cadre of SASGOG mentors who have helped me implement a presidential initiative by volunteering to spend the 7-8:00 hour providing 1:1 career counseling sessions to our members.

SASGOG will be sponsoring 2 events during the ACOG Annual Clinical and Scientific Meeting. The SASGOG Scientific Session is open to all ACOG meeting registrants and will occur Sunday, May 7, from 8-11am in the San Diego Convention Center Room 33A. The Program Chair, Dr. Tony Ogburn, has organized a high value morning featuring a wide range of topics relevant to OBGYN practice. The session will feature presentations of the top 3 (award-winning) abstracts submitted by SASGOG members, as well as return visit by SASGOG member and former O&G editor James Scott, MD, who will discuss "Recently Published Papers Important to Your Practice." In addition, SASGOG is one of the societies participating in the ACOG "Cutting Edge Topics in OBGYN" session on Monday, May 8, from 1-2:30 pm in Convention Center Ballroom 6C. The session is chaired by SASGOG Founding Board Member, Ches Thompson, MD, and includes 15-minute presentations by the leaders of AUGS, ASRM, SASGOG, SGO and SMFM highlighting what's new and important to OBGYN practice. The SASGOG session of Cutting Edge is named in honor of Kathryn M. and Thomas F. Purdon, MD.

Finally, all of the above would not be possible without the support of our new Executive Director, Nancy Frankel, PhD, her team from NFS Consulting, and you, our members. The engagement of a vibrant membership helps SASGOG dream big in pursuit of our mission of excellence! During or after the meeting please share your ideas with our Board of Directors or with Nancy. Your thoughtful insights will fuel our Board discussions on Saturday and over the subsequent months as we engage in a formal strategic planning process.

We hope you have a wonderful day that refills your cup and recharges your batteries for the important work we do as academic specialists. I look forward to seeing you at the reception!

Best wishes,

The Room Where It Happens: Payment Reform & Comprehensive Healthcare Delivery for Women

Barbara Levy, MD, ACOG Vice President for Health Policy. Barbara Levy, MD is the Vice President, Health Policy and administers ACOG's Office of Global Women's Health programs to improve patient safety and quality of women's health worldwide. Dr. Levy also supervises The Alliance for Innovation on Maternal Health program (AIM), Voluntary Review of Quality of Care, Safety Certification for Outpatient Practice Excellence for Women's Health, American Indian/Alaska Native Health Program, Health Economics, Strategic Health Care Initiatives department and programs for Maternal Mortality and Fetal & Infant Mortality. Dr. Levy has been a member of the American Medical Association/Specialty Society Relative Value Scale Update Committee (RUC) since 1999 and in 2015 she completed serving two consecutive terms as Chair of the RUC. The RUC is an expert panel of volunteer physicians and providers that issues recommendations to CMS regarding the relative work and direct practice expenses required to perform medical services. Before joining ACOG, Dr. Levy was in private ob-gyn practice and medical director of the Women's Health and Breast Center and Women's and Children's Services for the Franciscan Health System in Tacoma, Washington. Recognized in 2015 by Modern Healthcare magazine as one of the 50 Most Influential Physician Executive and Leaders, she has published and co-authored more than 80 studies and articles related to her primary research interests: hysterectomy, endoscopic surgery, pelvic pain, surgical outcomes, and physician payment policy. Dr. Levy graduated magna cum laude with an undergraduate degree in psychology from Princeton University and received her medical degree from the University of California, San Diego, followed by an internship and residency in ob-gyn at University of Oregon Health Sciences Center (now Oregon Health & Sciences University) in Portland.

Advocacy for Maternal-Child Health: Synergies between OB/GYN and Pediatrics

Valerie P. Opipari, MD, is currently the Chair, Pediatrics and Communicable Diseases and Ravitz Foundation Professor of Pediatrics and Communicable Diseases at the University of Michigan. Dr. Opipari received her bachelor's degree from McGill University in Montreal and her medical degree from McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario. She completed a fellowship in pediatric hematology/oncology at the University of Michigan in 1990 and joined the U-M faculty the same year. Dr. Opipari was appointed Chair for the Department of Pediatrics September 1, 2003. Prior to becoming Chair, Dr. Opipari was Associate Provost for Academic and Faculty Affairs at the University of Michigan Health System and past Associate Chair for Research within the Department. Her research focuses almost exclusively on the pediatric solid tumor, neuroblastoma. She is specifically interested in mechanisms of chemotherapy and radiation resistance as well as studies on the control of neuroblastoma invasion and metastases.

Meeting Objectives

While attending the 2017 SASGOG Annual Meeting, attendees should be able to:

- Explore how women's healthcare delivery, access and reimbursement may change in the future
- Develop strategies for teaching challenging skills within comprehensive obstetrics and gynecology
- Recognize the value of mentorship in its many forms throughout one's career
- Network to develop connections that will foster scholarship, mentorship and leadership opportunities
- Gain awareness of collaborative opportunities for women's health advocacy

Erika Banks, MD, completed her residency at Los Angeles County, University of Southern California, and was an Assistant Professor at the University of Southern California. She has been at Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Montefiore Medical Center in New York since 2000, and is currently Professor and Vice Chair for Education as well as Residency Program Director there. Dr. Banks has also been the Director of Gynecology there, and started the Fibroid Center at Montefiore Medical Center. She has been the recipient of both national and departmental faculty teaching awards.

Shannon Capp, MD, received her undergraduate degree at the University of Notre Dame and medical school at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences. Following graduation, she completed an internship in Internal Medicine at Bethesda Naval Hospital and then a utilization tour with the Marine Corps where she was deployed to Iraq. She then completed her residency in Ob-Gyn at the Naval Medical Center San Diego. She currently is a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Navy.

Jeanne Conry, MD, PhD, was the 64th President of the American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. She has led guideline development and national policy on Reproductive Health and the Environment. She is leading the Women's Preventive Services Initiative and has also led efforts on Quality and Safety in Maternity Care through improved standards and responses in high risk obstetrics. Dr. Conry was a practicing obstetrician gynecologist at Kaiser Permanente for 28 years, where she served in a leadership capacity, as the Assistant Physician-in-Chief for Kaiser Permanente's Sacramento Roseville region.

Mary S. Dolan, MD, MPH, is an Associate Professor in the Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics at Emory University. She is also the Director of the Division of General Obstetrics and Gynecology in the Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics at Emory University. Dr. Dolan is a board-certified obstetrician-gynecologist who attended Duke University for undergraduate education, Emory University for medical school and attained a dual degree (MD/MPH). After completing residency at UNC- Chapel Hill, she was Epidemic Intelligence Officer at the Centers for Disease Control, Division of Cancer Prevention and Control. Dr. Dolan is an expert on breast cancer screening and served a four-year term on the Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection and Control Federal Advisory Committee of the National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, following selection by Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius.

Maureen E. Farrell, MD, FACOG, received her undergraduate degree from the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland. Her residency in Obstetrics and Gynecology was completed at Naval Medical Center San Diego. She has been a comprehensive obstetrician gynecologist in 29 Palms CA, Camp Pendleton CA, Rota Spain and is presently serving as the OBGYN Residency Program Director at Naval Medical Center San Diego. She is a Clinical Associate Professor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences and a Voluntary Clinical Instructor in the Department of Reproductive Medicine at the University of California San Diego.

Tim Fisher, MD, MS, currently serves as the Ob/Gyn residency program director at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center in Lebanon, New Hampshire, as well as, the medical director of the Northern New England Perinatal Quality Improvement Network (NNEPQIN). He has previously served as the chair of obstetrics and gynecology and chief of surgical services at Cheshire Medical Center/Dartmouth Hitchcock Keene, an integrated 169 bed community hospital and 120 physician multispecialty group in southwestern New Hampshire.

Chuck Hitt, MD, is currently the Chair of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Mount Sinai Medical Center in Miami Beach, Florida. He was an Associate Professor of General Obstetrics and Gynecology for 10 years at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences and served as Director of the Division of General Obstetrics and Gynecology and then as Technology officer for 3 years. His interest in technology and information systems resulted in becoming a Physician Builder for EPIC. In December of 2016 Dr. Hitt became board certified in Clinical Informatics. He has a keen interest in optimizing EMR workflows for physicians, residents and medical students. Dr. Hitt is very excited to watch SASGOG grow as he served as a Founding Officer until May 2016.

D. Yvette LaCoursiere, MD, MPH, completed her residency training at U.C. San Diego in Obstetrics and Gynecology and earned her Master of Public Health at San Diego State University. She began her faculty career at the University of Utah in the Women's Reproductive Health Research (WRHR) Program where she has focused on outcomes associated with maternal obesity. As Deputy Director and Director of Community Outreach and Education at the University of Utah's Center of Excellence in Women's Health, she led the Obstetrics and Gynecology Program at the South Main Clinic. She worked with the San Diego County Medical Society on a Text4baby Customization Project for San Diego Women and presented the results at a Congressional Briefing in 2012. Dr. LaCoursiere serves as the Residency Director for the Department of Reproductive Medicine. She participated in the APGO Scholars and Leaders Program and now serves on the APGO Technical Committee. She is an examiner for the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology and serves as a reviewer for multiple journals. She is currently a co-investigator on several N.I.H. grants including the Prevention of Lower Urinary Tract Symptoms Consortium.

Lee A. Learman, MD, PhD, is the President of SASGOG. In 2015, following 7 years as Professor and Chair of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Indiana University, he moved to Florida to serve as the Senior Associate Dean for Graduate Medical Education and Academic Affairs at the Florida Atlantic University Charles E. Schmidt College of Medicine. Dr. Learman attended Harvard Medical School where he received his MD degree as well as a PhD in Social Psychology. After completing his OBGYN residency at UCLA Dr. Learman spent 14 years on the faculty at the UC San Francisco, where he became a Professor of Obstetrics, Gynecology, and Reproductive Sciences, Professor of Epidemiology and Biostatistics, OBGYN Residency Program Director, and Director of Curricular Affairs for the Office of Graduate Medical.

Antoinette Marengo-Barbick, MD, is a women's healthcare specialist in Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Naval Medical Center San Diego. She is the Associate Residency Program Director and the Director of Family Planning at her institution. She completed her residency training at the University of the Colorado Health Sciences Center, where she served as an Administrative Chief Resident in her final year (2004). She went on to serve in the United States Navy until 2007. Dr. Marengo is an Associate Clinical Professor at both the University of California Irvine and the Uniformed Services University of Health Sciences. She serves as a board examiner for the American Board of Ob/Gyn and is the incoming San Diego Section Chair for the American Congress of Ob/Gyns.

Kelly McCue, MD, is chief of Obstetrics and Gynecology at The Permanente Medical Group in Sacramento and Roseville, CA, and associate clinical professor of ob-gyn at the University of California, Davis. She has been involved in organized medicine for the last 20 years having held many positions within both ACOG and the California Medical Association. She currently serves as Secretary for ACOG District IX. Legislative advocacy has been a passion of hers and she co-leads ACOG's legislative committee as well as the Committee on Legislation for the California Medical Association.

Thomas Moore, MD, as Dean of Clinical Affairs and Chief Executive Officer of the UC San Diego Faculty Practice, Dr. Moore provides leadership of the UC San Diego Medical Group. Dr. Moore served as chair of the Department of Reproductive Medicine for 18 years, and chair of the Women and Infants Clinical Program Council. He is board-certified in obstetrics and gynecology, and maternal-fetal medicine, and specializes in high-risk pregnancies and diseases that affect the fetus. Dr. Moore served 25 years in the U.S. Navy and completed a fellowship in Maternal-Fetal Medicine at UC San Diego School of Medicine after doing his residency and internship in Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Naval Medical Center San Diego. Dr. Moore earned his medical degree and graduated cum laude from Yale University in Connecticut. He has authored and co-authored many peer-reviewed journal articles and chapters in major medical textbooks.

Sarah Page-Ramsey, MD, is an Associate Professor, Associate Residency Program Director, and Director of Senior Medical Students for the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Texas Health Science Center San Antonio. She received her undergraduate degree in Biochemistry, magna cum laude, at Clemson University in SC; medical school at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Science in Bethesda, MD; and her residency in obstetrics and gynecology at Wilford Hall Medical Center in San Antonio, TX. Prior to joining the UTHSCSA faculty, Sarah had a successful career in the Air Force as an OBGYN and retired from military service in November 2014. During her military career, she was awarded the Meritorious Service Award twice and the Defense Meritorious Service Award, and was selected as a Military Healthcare System Female Physician Leadership Course Fellow.

2017 Presenter Bios

Ale Rincon, MD, is a board-certified Ob/Gyn who received her undergraduate degree from Duke University and her medical degree from U.C. San Francisco. She completed her Obstetrics and Gynecology residency at U. C. Irvine and joined Kaiser Permanente Santa Clara in 2008. Her decision to work at Kaiser Permanente was based on the opportunity to treat a variety of patients, promote preventive care, refer to sub-specialists if necessary and not be concerned about medical insurance coverage. Dr. Rincon joined Kaiser Permanente as a full-scope Ob/Gyn practicing all aspects of the field. Her career was always focused on performing minimally invasive surgery and she led the department in developing a laparoscopic hysterectomy program.

Rechell G. Rodriguez, MD, Colonel Rechell G. Rodriguez is an Associate Professor of Medicine at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS). She is the Associate Dean for Regional Education and Academic Support providing faculty development at Naval Medical Center San Diego, Naval Hospital Camp Pendleton, David Grant Medical Center, and Mike O'Callaghan Federal Hospital. She is an active duty Air Force Internal Medicine faculty member. On faculty of USUHS, Department of Medicine since 2005, she was the Clerkship Director of the Internal Medicine Clerkships Program from 2005-2016. She co-directed the oversight of 7 Internal Medicine clerkship sites across the Military Health System. Her areas of expertise include Internal Medicine, the Stanford Faculty Development Center-Clinical Teacher Program, and faculty development for undergraduate medical education, graduate medical education, and continuing medical education.

Roger Smith, MD, is Assistant Dean for Graduate Medical Education and Professor of Clinical Biologic Sciences, at the Charles E. Schmidt College of Medicine, Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton, Florida. Dr. Smith received his undergraduate education at Purdue University, and his medical education, internship (in General Surgery), and residency (Ob/Gyn) at Northwestern University in Chicago. He serves in a number of leadership roles in national organizations in the specialty and is currently Immediate Past President of the Central Association of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (CAOG) and President of the Association of Professors of Gynecology and Obstetrics (APGO), the leading organization for medical student education in the field.

Bich Tran, MD, received her medical degree from Georgetown University School of Medicine. She completed her residency at the University of Texas Houston-Lyndon B. Johnson Hospital. She practiced general OB/GYN on faculty at the University of California-Irvine for six years. She then completed an AAGL fellowship in Minimally Invasive Gynecology at Florida Hospital in Celebration, Florida. Currently, she is an Associate Professor at the University of California-Riverside School of Medicine.

Shira Varon, MD, is a board-certified obstetrician/gynecologist and is an assistant professor in the Department of Reproductive Medicine at UC San Diego School of Medicine where she instructs medical students and residents, and has received accolades for her excellence in teaching. Dr. Varon provides a wide spectrum of care for women, including prenatal and childbirth care. She also provides well woman care, including health care maintenance and contraception, and has expertise in treating uterine fibroids and well as other gynecological conditions. Dr. Varon is also experienced in minimally invasive surgery. She is also a member of the UC Fibroid Network and has served on two national committees for the American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, which establishes standards of care for OB/GYN practices across the country.

Patrice M. Weiss, MD, is Executive Vice President and Chief Medical Officer at Carilion Clinic and Professor of OB/GYN at the Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine. Dr. Weiss is a past chair of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) Committee on Patient Safety and Quality Improvement and was an ex-officio member of the Committee on Professional Liability and the Voluntary Review of Quality of Care Steering Committee. She is a member of the Council on Patient Safety in Women's Healthcare as the representative for the Society for Academic Specialists in General Obstetrics and Gynecology (SASGOG). Dr. Weiss received her medical degree from Hahnemann University (Drexel) School of Medicine in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where she was inducted into the Alpha Omega Alpha honorary medical society. She completed her residency at Lehigh Valley Hospital as well as a Fellowship in Academic Leadership with the Council of University Chairs of Obstetrics and Gynecology.
